

Sample Job Description for SPs

Define Role:

A Simulated Participant (SP) is an actor who authentically portrays a character for the benefit of training healthcare students in empathy and communication. This position will provide sporadic hours for the SP. Some weeks may have more hours than others. SPs have the right to refuse any hours, but once they have confirmed hours, they are expected to attend. Last-minute cancellations can result in the termination of the contract.

What is the purpose of this role?

As an SP, you will be permitting the healthcare student to interact with diverse people of culture, affliction, and temperament. You will be assigned different character descriptions (roles) to perform for simulations. At the end of the simulation, you will provide feedback to the healthcare learners.

Define the responsibilities the position will have.

- To perform (an improv conversation) on Zoom for different healthcare students.
- Professional Engagement: You will need to be in close communication with the SP Coordinator to ensure your schedule is up to date and accurate.
- Knowledge of character that has been assigned for simulation.
- Professional communication with healthcare learners and faculty members from institutions.
- Knowledge on feedback after simulation and training will be provided.

Pay:

$20/hour includes training, simulation hours, and any last-minute cancellations from the institution.

More information can be found in our policy and procedure manual. If interested, this document can be provided.